A continuous line of carriages of every deription, laden with men and women, crossed the Brooklyn bridge this morning bound for the race track. A number of tally-hos, carrying gay crowds, attracted much attention as they drove through the city of churches. It is expected that 30,000 people will see the great race. The Brooklyn handicap is the fourth event, and it is not expected that the horses will be sent off before 4:30.

CUTTING THE WIRES. The Dwyer brothers at 2 p.m. stopped all telegraphic communication with the Gravesend track until after the races are over, not even allowing newspaper matter to be sent out.

EXPLOSION OF SEWER GAS. A Half a Dozen Persons Injured in New York This Morning.

One of the men took down the light so as to facilitate the work. There was a large accumu-lation of gas in the sewer, and as soon as the man reached the bottom of the sewer the exman reached the bottom of the sewer the explosion took place. As a precautionary measure the manholes had been opened extending for nearly two blocks either way, and this alone prevented a terrible disaster, as the neighborhood is thickly settled, and at the time of the explosion there were thousands of people in the vicinity.

The sudden rush of air and burning gas which followed the explosion sent him staggering away half blinded. His hair and eyebrows were burned off, his face peppered with mud and gravel and blistered with the flames.

AN INTERNATIONAL ROMANCE.

IE WAS SENT HERE TO STUDY LANGUAGES, BUT LEARNED THE LANGUAGE OF LOVE-PARENTAL OPPOSITION BROUGHT MATTERS TO A CRISIS.

MORA-DARNE. On May 9, 1891, in the city of satisfactor, at the residence of the cardinal, by the Rev. Tather Donohoe, chancellor of the diocese, CARLOS UBETTA y MORA of the City of Mexico, and MINNIE M. DARNE of Georgetown, D. C. THE YOUNG MEXICAN. Between two and three years ago Carlos Mora, a young Mexican of good family, came to this country to learn the language and add whatever was possible to his stock of knowledge. His father was dead and his mother had been married to Mr. Lancaster Jones, who, in spite of his name, was a Moxican. The stepfather it was who sent the young man to this country. When Senor Don Vicente Morales came to this city as second secretary of the Moxican legation, young Carlos was placed under his charge and has remained so up to the present time. The young Mexican has spent his time in this city in the study of the languages and photography, but he has also studied some other matters, as is proved by the above notice. According to all accounts Carlos has been more successful in his love affairs than he has in his other studies. As one acquaintance said: "Mora will never set the world on fire by his brains." Mora, a young Mexican of good family, came

HE MET AND LOVED A GEORGETOWN GURL. At any rate Mora met and loved Miss Minnie Darne of 1625 35th street, who is employed at the jewelry store of Mr. Desio on the jewelry store of Mr. Desio on Pennsylvania avenue. Miss Desio's parents, in spite of the hansom hanging around a young foreigner thirty-one years of age, with a front name like Carlos Zubeita, and a father who was a senator decidedly disapproved of the attentions of young Carlos and said as much to the young man in decided language. His opposition only added fuel to the flames of love and the young couple determined to perform the old, old miracle of changing two into one in spite of

A trip to Baltimore and the above notice was the result, and now although living under the result, and now although hiving under the ban of parental frowns and anxious thoughts of what will be the verdict from Mexico the pair are happy. The groom has, it is said, no means of his own, and is depend-ent entirely on his stepfather, who, although occupying an official po-sition in Mexico, is not overburdened with wealth. The intention of the young couple is to go, if possible, to Mexico.

Senor Morales, the young man's guardne between 8 and 9 o'clock this morning in- prised when the news came to him. At first jured half a dozen men so that a majority of them will have to go to hospital. The men were cleaning the sewer at the junction of South and Beekman streets. Four were in the sewer.

One of the men took down the light so as to be the semental serious called and informed him of the step he had taken and wished the Senor to write the semental serious called and informed him of the step has the semental serious called and informed him of the step has the semental serious called and informed him of the step has the semental semental serious called and informed him of the step has the semental se written to Mexico and Senor Morales has written to that effect. To a STAR reporter Senor Morales said he had been greatly surprised at the marriage and he felt the greatest sympathy for the young lady. Carlos, he said, had done nothing since he had been in this country except waste his time and more by shrugs than by words the senor expressed his belief that Carlos did not possess an over supply of mental powers. HIS FATHER WELL TO DO.

"Carlos' father," said the senor, "is a lawyer of Mexico and at present is a senator. He is a well known man but not especially wealthy. I know nothing of the girl. I have written to Mr. Jones and shall do nothing further until I hear from him, when, if he says so, it will afford me the greatest pleasure to see my charge start for Mexico."
At the residence of the Darnes in Georgetown the family refused absolutely to make any state ment in regard to the marriage.

Assistant Chief Clerk of the Pe

It would have been worded so as to take effect immediately had not the authorities been moved by the sympapany made application for payment for street lighting during these months it was confronted with a bill of $702.08 for the hours it had failed thy for those who must suffer because of Mr.

Raum's imprudence.

STORIES OF IRREULLARITIES.

Some time ago the attention of the Interior Department was directed to Green B. Raum, Jr., and in a little while the atmosphere of Secretary Noble's office was clouded with rumers that appeared to have in them so much of solidity that they were bound to receive attention. An informal investigation was set on foot. Charges were made that Mr. Raum had, while assistant chief clerk of the pension bureau, appointed persons to positions in the bureau in return for financial benefits received or promised.

One of the cases was laid before Secretary Noble, and upon it that official took im mediate action. The story, which comes from indubitable sources, is generally to the effect that a South Carolinian advertised in one of the local newspapers for a government position which would pay him not less than $50 per month, and in that same advertisement was replied to by a colored man who is employed in the Treasury Department and who had been connected in a domestic capacity with the Raum ramily. This man informed the advertised in the Green of the South Carolinian to Assistant Chief Clerk liaum. That was done by the colored man, and in a short time the recommendation of the hands of the Treasury seppointment were through for the southerner's appointment went through for the southerner's appointment we made. In some way or other the commission got into the hands of the Treasury employe and he met the appointee or Arth street near the Interior Department. An exchange was effected, the colored man getting his $500 while the gentleman from South Carolina will an entire the appointment was made. In some way or other the commission got into the hands of the Treasury employe and he met the appointee or Arth street near the Interior of this money, but Mr. Raum denied this statement.

Marriage Licenses.

Before these matters became known the case wanted a promotion. He needed a $1,200 salary and was willing to pay for it.
A job was put up by which a clerk in the pension office personated Smith, for that was the South Carolinian's name, before was the South Carolinian's name, before the civil service commission. The substitute passed a good examination and when Smith's name was drawn from the eligible list Smith himself put in an appearance. The photograph of Mr. Jackson, who was the pension office clerk, not being on the papers, there was no way in which to identify Smith, so he got the

Then the Secretary called upon Green B. Raum, jr., to bring forth his resignation. To this Mr. Raum demurred, but the Secretary was obdurate. Very naturally Commissioner Raum heard something of the trouble and he at once secured his son's resignation. He did not believe any of the stories upon which the Secretary based his action, but he said he would not attempt to interfere in his son's behalf. If the secretary did not believe his half. If the secretary did not believe his son was conducting his office properly, he (the commissioner) would do everything in his power to place the bureau in a satisfactory

The resignation was not tendered directly to Secretary Noble, for he had gone to St. Louis; it was handed to Gen. Bussey, the second assistant Secretary of the Interior (who has charge of pension matters) and he had not acted upon it until this afternoon.

This morning there was another revelation of some interest and it was this -coming to the Chandler—that closed matters up hurry. It seems that about three months in a hurry. It seems that about three months ago the sum of $72 was received by the pension office from a pensioner who claimed to have received that much more than was due him. A letter accompanied the notes and this was signed "Honesty." As was customary the sum was placed in the safe of the assistant chief clerk for a fe keeping until it could be turned into the Treasure.

THE MONEY NOT THERE. there and it remained absent some time. The chief of division, who was responsible for it made inquiry as to its whereabouts and, as was developed in tostimony given today be-fore Secretaries Chandler and Bussey, it was fore Secretaries Chandler and Bussey, it was found to be in the possession of Green B. Baum, jr., he having borrowed it and applied it to his personal uses. Yesterday—several days after Mr. Raum's demanded resignation had been handed in—the money was returned by Mr. Raum.

Secretaries Chandler and Bassey sat in judgment on the case for a couple of hours today; called for testimony from pension office employes, heard thom in the presence of a Star reporter, and finally concluded to accept the resignation in a hurry.

GEN. RAUM NOT RESPONSIBLE. The authorities state most emphatically that Gen. Raum is in no sense responsible for the conduct of his son and at least one of the assistant secretaries is certain that the commissioner s ignorant of the occurrences which have brought about the unfortunate condition o

The Commissioners spent considerable of ested in the Phelps tract, which it is sought to and several protests have been received against the approval of this subdivision. Senator Stewart has fought this subdivision before the Commissioners on several occasions. Mr. J. B. Wimer did the speech-making to Mr. J. B. Wimer did the speech-making to-day. He said that if Connecticut avenue was extended through the Phelps tract it would take about 30 per cent of land contained therein, make a grade of thirty feet from Boundary to Leroy place, destroying the latter subdivision entirely and chang-ing every grade on Washington Heights, as well as destroying a number of hand-some dwellings. He thought the present Connecticut avenue extended should be doubled in width and further extended to the Woodley Lane bridge. This, he asserted could be done almost in a straight line.

connecticut avenue extended should be doubled in width and further extended to the Woodley Lane bridge. This, he asserted, could be done almost in a straight line. A grade of ten or twelve feet would be encountered, but this could be greatly relieved by raising the bridge.

Commissioner Douglass wanted to know why the owners of the Phelps property could not wait for congressional legislation. He had no doubt that the whole question of street extension would be finally settled, and the very question now under discussion would be a good case to lay before Congress.

In reply Mr. Wimer stated that if the owners of the property had any idea that the question would shortly be settled they would wait, but no one could expect them to wait with no idea when a settlement would be reached.

'This matter,' said Mr. Douglass, 'is of considerable importance, and we shall give it careful consideration before coming to any conclusion."
